MEADOWS TO MEADERS

Southmead has a wealth of fascinating history that we would like to uncover with the help of local residents.

Southmead was created in the 1930s when people were moved from all over Bristol to 1,500 newly built houses.

From September 2016 to July 2017 we will be working with:

- Bristol University and innovative film and media production company, Calling the Shots to create a documentary that captures the history of the neighbourhood and the houses in which you grew up
- Inspirational cookery company, Travelling Kitchen to cook meals together and see what we can learn from recipes from the 1930s about healthy eating today
- Bristol Old Vic theatre company to produce a 'soap opera' about the beginnings of Southmead that will be performed by you, live in the streets in July 2017
- Multi-media producer, Tot Foster to create an exhibition based on objects that you provide that reveal something about Southmead's history

COME ALONG TO THE MEADOWS TO MEADERS LAUNCH
ASCOT ROAD, SUNDAY SEPTEMBER 25th
BETWEEN 10AM AND 4PM

Learn more about the project and how you can get involved.

We would love to see any photographs you might have of Southmead.

The Know Your Bristol team will be on hand to make digital copies of your photos.

Meet Bristol Old Vic director, Lisa Gregan and share your stories about growing up in Southmead with scriptwriter, Bea Roberts to help shape the 1930s soap opera to be performed next summer.

Share your recipes with Travelling Kitchen and taste some 1930s style cooking.

To find out more or get involved email ruth.myers@locallearning.org.uk or leave a message in the SCART shop on Greystoke Avenue.
