

HILLFIELDS

LITTLE BOOK OF IDEAS

INSPIRED BY THE PEOPLE OF HILLFIELDS

For more information pop into your Hillfields Library, Community Hub, or contact Local Learning at: info@locallearning.org.uk

On Saturday 6th June community and Local Learning will host a theatre performance and street party.

This booklet has been created by four Masters of Architecture students at the University of the West of England who have been invited by Local Learning to contribute and partake in the Hillfields - Homes for Heroes centenary celebration project.

MISSION AND VALUES

To inspire the local people of Hillfields to get involved, create discussion between neighbours, share stories between strangers and to continue the momentum of involvement and engagement within the local community following the Homes for Heroes celebrations.

- To further engage local residents through ideas and inspire them into action.
- To learn from the past and demonstrate how the past can inform the future.
- To create a stronger connection between the Library and Community Hub.
- To leave a sustainable legacy that is simple for the community to build upon.

WHY?

The Hillfields Little Book of Ideas has been inspired by meeting and speaking with local residents at workshops, story sharing sessions and conversations on the street. It is clear that Hillfields has a rich history, a strong community and is loved by many of its residents however, what is evident is that there is more that can be done.

These are just a few ideas that you can start with. We hope that by being given a little bit of inspiration, you can build upon ideas and work together with your neighbours to create your own. This can start right now.
